

EDITOR'S SPEAK

Dear Readers,

We are back with yet another exciting, fun filled issue. Like all our previous issues I am sure, you will enjoy reading this one too. Well, as we set our festive moods high, with Navratri and Eid, let us also spare a thought for the thousands of lives which have been devastated by the Kosi floods...

The rampaging Kosi has left millions stranded in several districts of Bihar. Unravelling tragic dimensions in Northern Bihar, the Kosi story seems to have faded out eventually from our television screens and of course our lives. Floods have become a regular feature. But is this reason strong enough for us to remain indifferent? What happens to the millions who are marooned?

Children living in the relief camps are facing severe health threats. There are reports of outbreak of measles and confirmed cases of diarrhoea. With provisions of rehabilitation and reconstruction not being considered important enough, these people are left with no option but to suffer. Even before the floods, Bihar has had the worst malnutrition and child mortality statistics. With farmlands being completely wiped out, millions of families have lost their means of livelihood and survival. Life for them has come to a standstill...

While government provisions and NGO's are doing their best to rectify the situation, let us also try and help them in our own little way. Our little contribution to the relief funds can probably bring back a smile to someone's face. Of course, this smile would also add to the joy of the festive season and our festivity would be all the more fun, happy and fulfilling.

Until then, go crazy, go wild, experiment with creativity and of course keep reading Friday...

Regards

IONA CHATTERJEE
ionachatt@gmail.com

STEAK TREAT

Steak House is a perfect place to relax and rejuvenate; thanks to its interesting steak menu

Bandra adds another restaurant to its list of many. Located in Pali Hill, "Steak House" serves some of the tempting savories. Perfect for a special night out for almost any occasion, Steak House is an ideal getaway from your mundane chores.

Reservations aren't required to get a table at this restaurant, but to be on the safer side make one. The menu is extensive which includes spicy chicken wings, lamb chops, honey roasted crab and other tempting grills. The price is reasonable at Rs.170 to Rs. 300. Although the steaks are on the higher side at Rs.300, the coastal dishes (bombay ducks, crab masala, goan curry...) will set you back no more than Rs.300.

For starters they serve the crispy fried chicken fillet basic... but yummy. Here the fillets are golden fried and served with fries and a cocktail dip. For main course you can opt for the roast chicken breast steak, tender chicken breast with soya and garlic cooked in red wine sauce and served with butter parsley and garlic vegetables, lamb steak in barbeque sauce, a tender lamb steak topped with pepper garlic sauce and served with hash browns and onion rice.

While steak is the in thing at Steak House, you can still try some of the desserts such as delicious waffles served with whipped cream, mascarpone cheese, almonds and chocolate sauce - a perfect toast to a great barbecue dinner. Since Steak House is a resto-bar (the bar which is likely to open in a month) can be perfect weekend outing!

PRAVEER SINHA
sinhapraveer@gmail.com