Design & Launch of Innovative Academic Programs at MET:

- Launch Pad-In this module Met has tried to familiarize the students the sights, sounds and realities of the postgraduate management learning systems. In this program the teachers and the students view themselves as one 'body and soul' to reach out to the core of the knowledge they seek.
- SIMPAT-School for Indian Management Philosophy and Applied Technology. A project that returns to the roots of Indian management philosophy, SIMPAT makes yesteryear's wisdom available to India's managers and leaders.
- UN ECOSOC Internship Program – A unique initiative promoted by us ensuring placement of dozen of students as interns at the UN ECOSOC Council, New York to gain experience in the UN Missions and program as well as enrich their cross cultural capabilities
- Metaphor - MET's Schools of Management Journal. This magazine addresses some of the issues faced by the industry and commerce worldwide, as contributed by students and faculty
- MET on Wheels-A pioneering concept where MET students visit organisations in industrial verticals across the country in order to study practical management learnings.
- Mumbai Retail Profiler-It is an outcome of survey conducted amongst retailers and consumers (actually doing purchase) between Andheri to Mahim (W).
- METEX-It is an open forum for exchange of ideas between students-faculty-industry experts. It helps students gain live exposure to business and commercial issues viewed from multiple angles.

- Project TRUTH-Total Rural Upliftment Through Holistic Care – This is MET initiative scripted by me for presentation to UN ECOSOC Conference in Mumbai in February 2003. It aims at uplifting the quality of life tribals located at Waliv, Thane District. It was also presented at UN Forum. The students, faculty of MET along with other NGOs are participating in the program.
- Math Hour-In order to develop quantitative logic, analytical approach and model building capability, to the discipline of management, to seek management solutions, quantitative experts share their learnings with students and offer continuous guidance.
- CRM Forum-Customer Relationship Management is increasingly gaining importance among business practitioners and academics. As technologies and customers expectations rapidly change, industry realizes the value of having long term relationship with individual customers and other business partners. This is promoted by this forum consisting of students, faculty and industry professionals.
- METCOMBAT-Innovative minds at work, have designed a debating program called METCOMBAT. It is competitive event where two teams debates, analyze and present on a current affairs topic
- MET Mentoring Program – A participatory student, faculty and alumni interaction aimed at improving the networking capability as well as counselling the students to build up their confidence level and industry knowledge.
- MET Internship program – Under this program every student is placed with industry with a partnering industry throughout the program. The students are expected to work as professional in the making offering their ideas and inputs to industry and share the work ethic.
