Just a stone's throw away from the Arabian Sea is an institution that is creating waves. Because, it is quite simply, a cut above the rest. The MET League of Colleges is a conglomerate of premiere educational institutions, driven by a single-minded focus on imparting quality education, to make students sharp. Training is imparted round-the-clock, seven days a week. Projects and assignments are given utmost importance and students learn on the job. Application-oriented knowledge, garnered in the lecture halls, is applied to industry assignments. The faculty spares no effort to make the students razor sharp, so that they make their mark in the corporate world. No effort has been spared, to create an environment that encourages students, to push the limits of their minds. All this, to help young professionals face the challenges of life. And make their mark in the corporate world.

At MET, over four thousand students and faculty are involved in delivering unique learning systems, through ultra modern infrastructure and academic rigour. MET Institutes are ISO certified, with affiliations to the University of Mumbai, Directorate of Technical Education, All India Council of Technical Education, MSBTE, Pharmacy Council of India, C-DAC - Ministry of Communications and Information Technology, The Chartered Insurance Institute (CII), London, Michigan State University, East Lansing, and Tianjin University, China, Hawaii University in participation with the University of Mumbai. “All of us do not have equal talent, but all of us should have equal opportunity.”
- John F. Kennedy

During the last seven decades, since independence, the education sector has witnessed a metamorphosis of sorts - as structural and regulatory reforms have been built around the multi-dimensional public/private partnerships. While the haloed schools of learning, built at a huge cost, succeeded in building world class brands, catering to a microcosm, the private unaided institutions pulled all stops to shape the macrocosm of our country, for building an inclusive society. As Ms. Indra Nooyi, Dr. Raghuram Rajan or Satya Nadella ascend to the commanding heights, in the global business arena, one cannot but appreciate the unseen hand of private educational institutions. Take a bow – we all did it!

However, as the knowledge society seeks to hasten the tectonic shift to a learning society, riding the information age, we find that the digital divide is challenging the very fundamentals of traditional tutoring and scholarship, carefully crafted over decades. As the smart phone equipped youth outpace and over reach the digitised data bytes, the teachers and the academicians continue to grapple with pedagogy, in schools and colleges. Converting the overload of information/knowledge to wisdom is the greatest challenge of all learning institutions now.

We at MET, are constantly continuing to shape academics, by delivering holistic, value based, participatory learnings through state of the art tools and technologies that encompass the latest from the digital world. It is our endeavour to design and deliver unique learning journeys to students, so that they unravel the mysteries of the world and take ownership of their learning. Through constant research, a mix of fun and learn games, counselling, consulting and parent teacher collaboration, we reboot, to refine the critical balance between the outbound/classroom experience.

A lifelong, transformative and collaborative learning journey is our only promise at MET, as we believe in the words of the King of Blues - “The beautiful thing about learning is that no one can take it away from you.”

Professional Management Education programmes (known as PGDM) to provide professionals to meet the needs of Indian Industry were initiated in the 1960s at Indian Institutes of Management and later by other Universities. PGDM (e-Business) draws its strength and character from this iconic lineage.

With the development of e-empowered business solutions, tools and databases, the professional manager has since been greatly empowered to provide direction and dynamism to industry. Therefore, it is critical that e-business is integrated not merely as an option to decision-making, but as the medium and lingua franca of the world of business. In order to appreciate business realities and nuances the world over, it is critical that these inputs are delivered to the aspiring managers at the right time so as to enrich their decision-making capacity.

This is precisely the purpose of the PGDM (e-Business) programme. It is true that a plethora of softwares and languages are delivered at the doorstep of industry, but one needs to identify the critical inputs and train the professionals to use them decisively with success.

Details of PGDM (e-Business) programme spread over four semesters are enclosed. All critical inputs in core areas of management are delivered using interactive platforms and methods like case studies, outbound training, role play workshops and seminars by industry experts, alumni, factory visits, etc. this is further strengthened by eight weeks of summer internship and industry threshold programme in the fourth semester, wherein students work to prepare a live business model and industry project.

We have the necessary infrastructure – the hardware and the software with highly skilled experienced and motivated faculty ready to develop students into professionals who can meet the challenges of the globalised e-empowered economy. Since there is an already developed placement platform with the industry, the learnings being imparted to students have been sharpened to meet industry requirements on an ongoing basis.

Thus, in the four semesters the PGDM (e-Business) programme will shape the students to meet the challenges of the corporate world by developing their capabilities to face the complexities of business worldwide. We hope the students will enjoy the experience and attain their chosen place in the industry. The content and delivery of the learning programme seeks to achieve synergy between Industry and Academic challenges. The students are evaluated on the lines of AICTE norms followed by leading B schools in the country.

The grand march of the modern management juggernaut from Taylor/Fayol to Porter/Prahalad, over the last two centuries, appears to be drawing a close parallel to the rise and fall of the Roman Empire, as penned by Macaulay. We can see the same intensity based on expansionism, driven by armies built around rigid massive structures, obsessed with perpetuation of the victory parade to the applause of the Senators and Caesars. No doubt the Roman victors ruled with an iron hand conquering Europe and a part of African continents, but they also looted the subjects and their territories, while enslaving the locals. Thus they created a divide between the rulers and the subjects, which needed over two millennia for attaining societal equilibrium. Eventually greed, inept leadership and ultra-rigid structure of governance took the toll of the empire. Have we not learnt from history? Or are we following the same route as the modern mega corps and their leadership take on the past roles of the Empire and the Senators?

From the humble origins of Taylor’s time and motion studies to the Johari Window and core competency/BCG matrix, management thought seems to have pervaded into almost every walk of human life and business. Caught between the dogma of science and art, it appears to deliver solutions to the ills of the man and the universe, from the microcosm to the macrocosm, largely to the satisfaction of the beneficiaries.

The fountainhead of strategic thinking - Chanakya says that in order to be successful, you have to focus on the manager, his army and the ally, as the principal constituents for success. Such successful partnerships have been forged between the industry, academia and the society and this synergetic combination has produced millions of managers and co-sharers of the task of serving the society and the global economy, while facilitating the growth of professionalism. These evangelists, through their blood, toil, sweat and tears have built the global economy, almost touching one hundred trillion dollars annually.

As professional schools, colleges, engineering and management institutions shape millions of youth worldwide, there is great need and urgency to closely examine, rethink and fine tune the pedagogy and learning systems, which take centre stage in providing the tools needed to build a better future for the global economy. Social networks, Mobile applications, Analytics and Cloud (SMAC) are the principal tools and e-interventions, which separate the smart corps from the rest. But those laggards, who have missed the digital revolution, must ponder whether they are on the right track. Are we really tackling core issues? Or are we merely operating at a superficial level? Fundamentally, we must question: Are we equipped to handle the challenges of today and face those of the future?

As B-Schools are designed to deliver the future leaders of global business, we must immediately launch into critical self-introspection and a reality check, whether we are rising to meet the challenges of the new economy – innovation and entrepreneurship, empowered by the digital revolution. Are we just giving degrees or we are creating capabilities? How do we foster innovation and entrepreneurship in students? Do they have learning-ability and learning skills? Are we merely focusing on the word Administration of the MBA term? What about the B i.e. Business? Unless we help students understand and do B (business) globally, they will be incapable of handling future challenges on their own.

This is possible only when the internalisation of learning is driven by the PASSION of the student. Instead of identifying the students’ passion and allowing them to build business models around their core strength, we seem to bury them under the pyramid of academic overburden. As the semesters fly past, the hapless student resembles Columbus, who mistook Americas for the land of Indus.

It is heartening to note that even at the haloed schools of learning globally, there is a gradual focus on working on the strengths and passions of the students in imparting management learning. This helps unleash hidden forces of the students, to accept the challenges of the market place and deliver seamless solutions for professional success. Building a business is finally about channelling PASSION. So identifying passion and giving scope to its fruition is the new model of learning.

But in a world, where business is sharply divided between the haves and have-nots, excess of passion often breeds pure greed and avarice. If we focus on only the winning ability, can we be blamed for bringing out professionals with a lop-sided view of corporate success, to be achieved at any cost? How can we temper and divert professional passion to achieve societal goals, without compromising the bottom line? After all, it is elevating the corporate horizon to reach out to the last link in the value chain.

As passion driven Innovation and Entrepreneurship will create new business and value addition to the society, compassion for the poor will propel corporate deliverables to the last soul, waiting to be served, since creation. Passion and compassion need to go hand-in-hand. A soul without passion cannot visualise reaching out to the under privileged.

Therefore at MET we seek to integrate student passion into study, so as to sensitise students to the social sensitivities of the market place, shaping professional managers for the business world, to achieve the transcendence from passion to compassion, not only for societal needs, but for sustaining corporate success. This will help them to keep pace with the dynamic market place, as we move to 4G and beyond the third wave, as visualised by Alvin Tofler.

We are using innovative processes, to kindle the spirit of business leadership and ownership amongst young professionals, through exposure to a broad range of experiential learning processes and business simulations. Besides exposure to CSR initiatives and social entrepreneurship start-ups, our students are engaged in empowerment exercises, which help develop strategic and analytical thought processes, to use strengths of business models, for building sustainable enterprises. We hope these lessons empower them to rise to the challenges of the global economy, facilitating their journey from passion to compassion.

Welcome to Parichay 2016, offering the new batch of MET professionals, to steer the corporate houses and the economy to the chosen place of pride in the global business arena.
