Teaching Learning Process
Some initiatives we have emphasized upon while teaching online <ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. Created a safe learning environment where discussions and dialogue was encouraged. Making mistakes would mean you have tried something new and are out of your comfort zone. 2. Set an ethical learning process through well planned virtual sessions Have send in the syllabus, module coverage, reference books, expected deliverables and timelines, evaluation criteria much before the sessions started so that the students are inline and there are no surprises <ol style="list-style-type: none"> 3. Encouraged and ensured self-regulated learning, relevance and practical transference of learning Theories and concepts learned in class were validated through their own learning through corporate presentations where they personally interviewed HR professionals of top companies (guided by the professor) <ol style="list-style-type: none"> 4. Used multiple teaching methods to keep them engaged and involved (videos, case studies, quizzes, breakout room activities, peer learning etc.) 5. Constantly assessed the pulse of all three classes (almost 185 students) to understand what needs to be strengthened, who requires more support and a helping hand. Collaborative teams were formed so that a buddy was always there to help.
