

Companionship

*Unlike relationships that dissolve
As they let off steam
Accusing the other for the grief
And for much else that has gone before
While harbouring a hurt
Deep within
That outlives the moment and the instance*

*The cup of tea
That lies untouched on my table
Letting off steam
Realigns its value
As it turns from hot to cold
Offering solace by just being
As also a lesson on life and living.*

*Dr. Preeti Shirodkar
Associate Professor
Communication and Soft Skills
MET IOM*